ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

Bridging Knowledge, Culture, and Society

Artificial intelligence (AI) and digital technology are reshaping how people produce knowledge, communicate, learn, and understand cultural and religious identity. They open wide opportunities for interdisciplinary innovation, yet bring challenges of ethics, privacy, information reliability, and technology governance.

ICoMS 2026 is an academic forum that brings together researchers, lecturers, students, practitioners, and stakeholders to exchange ideas, disseminate research, and build collaboration networks.

MAIN THEME

Artificial Intelligence, Language, and Multidisciplinary Transformation: Bridging Knowledge, Culture, and Society

01
Language
a medium of knowledge and identity

02
AI
a transformative force

03
Multidisciplinary
a bridge between knowledge, culture, and society

Objectives

- An international forum on language, AI, and multidisciplinary transformation.
- Dissemination of original research in the digital era.
- Academic collaboration and research networks across institutions and countries.
- Critical understanding of the opportunities, limits, and ethics of AI.
- Innovative recommendations for society and socio-cultural sustainability.

FOR PRESENTERS

Presenter Pathway

1 Submit your abstract (15–25 October)
Fill in the form on the website: name and title, email, affiliation, category, paper title, then upload your abstract (.doc/.docx) using the official template.

2 Wait for notification (30 October)
The list of accepted abstract titles is published on the official website.

PAYMENT

Presenters pay only after their abstract has been accepted. Do not transfer any fee before the official acceptance notification; the fee then follows your presenter category (page 10).

3 Pay and upload your receipt
Once accepted, transfer the fee for your category and upload the proof of payment through the form on the website.

4 Submit full paper and slides (15–20 November)
Use the full paper template and the PowerPoint template from the website.

5 Present (26 November)
Present on-site at Auditorium Phinisi or online via Zoom.

Selected papers may be published in partner journals (page 11), subject to each journal's selection and review process.
